Notes: Have you guys lost touch with the real world. We have a economy that is floundering, we have 10% unemployment in Ohio, and you approve First Energy to raise rates for those that built a "All Electric Home". Remember, it was the utility companies that promoted the "All Electric Plan". Now that the "All Electric Plan" is not in vogue, why do we have to pay the price for a bad decision that the company made years ago. A contract is a contract and the PUC should hold First Energy to its commitment it made to those of us who built a "All Electric Home" When I make a bad decision, I pay for it and no one bails me out. First Energy is no different. My advice would be not to approve future "New All Electric Homes" with cheap rates. But to pull the rug out from those of us that bought into the agreement with the Utility Companies is irresponsible on the part of PUC. John Capron
