ZHIUMAR -9 PM 2: 1

Notes: In 1991 when my husband and I built our retirement home we were told we could get an all electric rate if our home was totally electric. We chose electric. Now that we are retired and can do nothing to change the heating from electric to another source we have been told that we can no longer get the all electric rate. We have no options and are stuck with higher electric bills while living on a fixed income. This is a terrible thing to do to senior citizens at a time when life is so difficult anyway. I think the all electric rate should remain in effect for those of us who have had it for so many years and only stop for new customers. We still pay the current rate in the Non-Winter months so why not let us have this break that we are accustomed to having for a few months?
