COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

I built my home in 1983 and put in all electric because of the all electric home discount. For the last three months my bill has more than doubled because of First Energy doing away with this discount. I understand that they have gone back to the original discount on a temporary basis. I agree that with the cost of energy they deserve a SMALL rate hike but I also believe that they should honor any existing agreements with all electric home owners. If they want to do away with this discount from this point on then customers know what they are getting into, but they should be made to honor any past commitments to homeowners.
