COMPLAINT DESCRIPTION:

Gentlemen:

I do not have a document concerning the discount practice for all electric homes, such as my own.

However, I have never seen evidence from The Illuminating Company stating that the discount was temporary; i.e., introductory offer, etc.

It reminds me of the analogy of a common-law marriage, after so many years you become legally married without a marriage certificate (document). Therefore, The Illuminating Company after so many years is bound by the understood agreement, that an all electric home is always under a discounted electricity rate.

As you can understand, all electric homes will probably be under a disadvantage when they are put of the market for sale, plus many other disadvantages; i.e., cost of conversion to gas, etc.

Thank you,

Myron Bliss
