QUESTION DESCRIPTION:

Please send me information on the PUCO's decision to limit eligibility of the Rider RGC to residential electric heating customers only. It seems odd that the PUCO would favor electric over gas utilities. Considering the current economic and political environment, it would also make more sense that the PUCO would want to help consumers find discounts and ways to save money rather than take those discounts away. More information and an explanation of increased costs to gas consumers would be much appreciated.
