Todd Snitchler

Dear Snitchler,

Now that the city of Cincinnati has taken a stand against Duke Energy's dirty business and chosen an energy provider using less coal, Duke is asking for a rate hike on working Ohioans and small business owners to compensate for their failure to modernize. Duke Energy shouldn't be allowed to use rate hikes to punish customers who choose cleaner, cheaper options for their electricity supply.

Duke Energy should quit investing in coal and instead invest in the renewable technologies that they claim to support--and that are required under Ohio's Renewable Portfolio Standard. In Ohio, we already pay the hidden cost of coal with our health and our environment. But if companies like Duke want to ask more from our pocketbooks too, it should be for an Ohio that's powered by local wind & solar that will protect our health and employ thousands of Ohioans.

I oppose this rate hike.

Re: Case No. 12-1682-EL-AIR.

I am writing to let PUCO know that I strongly oppose the pending proposal to allow Cincinnati City Council to add a surcharge to Duke Energy electricity bills to help pay for the Cincinnati Streetcar project. The streetcar proposal may be "cool," but it is a luxury that we simply cannot afford right now, and will benefit only a few while imposing costs on all. Please reject the surcharge proposal!

Sincerely,

Michael A. Manzler

Duke Energy has proposed is to allow a separate "Streetcar Tax" to be added to all Cincinnati electric bills. This is nothing more than a hidden tax meant to disguise the true cost of the Streetcar. I do not want to pay for this Streetcar through my electric bill.

Docketing Case No.:12-1682-EL-AIR

Notes:

>Re case number 12-1682-EL-AIR: The City of Cincinnati has proposed to force Duke Energy to incur the costs for moving its gas and electric lines under the proposed streetcar route. The costs, of course, would be added to our utility bills, even those like me who live miles from the proposed route. I strongly object to this. The streetcar is not economically viable -- if it were, private industry would be financing it. Further, I have talked to the city's engineer, Michael Moore, about the high costs compared to electric trolley busses (which would not require the utilities to be moved, among other advantages). He stated that high initial costs were an advantage of the streetcar because it would be an incentive for the city to continue funding it and trying to make it succeed. With a lot of money already spent, the city would keep putting money into the streetcar rather than give up. Please do not allow the city to continue with this reckless scheme.

Please docket the attached in the case number above.

Docketing Case No.: 12-1692-EL-AIR

Notes:

This is regarding case 12-1692-EL-AIR, the application for Cincinnati City Council to add a surcharge to our Duke Bill for the streetcar project. I am not a resident of the city proper, but am a resident of Hamilton County. I absolutely do not support this project, but was unable to vote one way or the other because of my residence. I have been unable to determine if this surcharge would apply to all Duke customers or just those living within the city boundaries. If this will apply to all, I wish to voice my vehement objection to such a surcharge. Fighting unrepresented taxation is what helped to form this country and lately it seems we must begin the fight anew. I would appreciate your response to the question of just who this would be levied upon. Thank you so much, Kim Cooper

COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

Regarding the request from the city of Cincinnati to add a tax/extra charge for moving water, gas and electric service lines in order to build the streetcar - I object to this back door way of taxing rate payers because a city/municipality wishes to complete a transportation based project but doesn't have the funding to complete it. Also I don't live in the city but this could set a precedent for other villages etc. My zip code is partly within Cincinnati but I don't live in the city so I don't wish to be part of this rate increase/tax.
