COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

I am writing to protest the plan to eliminate regulated gas pricing. Is there nothing to be learned from Georgia, the only state that allowed regulated prices to be discontinued? According to Columbia Gas documents, customers who signed up for unregulated plans with other suppliers have paid $885 million more than they would have under regulated prices since 1997. I was one of those fools for a few years until I realized I was paying more. I believe that The Public Utilities Commission should look after the general public's interest and not the big companies. I also think that Mr. Snitchler should stop "tweeting" his personal opinions critical of "green" energy or else resign his position as Chairman of P.U.C.O.
