Docketing Case No.: 12-426-EL-SSO

Notes:

Regarding a hearing on DP&L rates, as noted in a story in the Dayton Daily News on 01/24/13, I hope will you will not agree to their $687.5 million dollar charge to customers over the next five years. This is described as a charge so that the utility can stay competitive with other marketers. How do you stay competitive by raising rates? You stay competitive by lowering rates! We are already faced with astronomical electrical costs. While natural gas, for instance, has become cheaper, electrical costs are continuing to rise. It's time the residential customer, the "little guy", got a break.
