Notes:

Please docket the attached in the case number above.

How is it DP&L is allowed to ask for a rate increase simply to increase or make up for lost revenue ?? Is that really a valid reason ? From a consumer perspective, it would hardly seem so. Perhaps some cost cutting or increased efficiency to make up for whatever caused the "lost revenue" would be in order. What incentive do they have to hold down cost if all they have to do ask us for more money ??
