Dear Sirs,

My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution and saving money on our electric bills by supporting clean energy.

With technology of today, I believe that we need to invest more in solar and wind power which causes less pollution.

We need to stop working with coal and oil and move to cleaner solutions because we are destroying the environment and need to look to ways to stop polluting. I understand that we are looking at clean coal but to me this is just a stop gap as coal is a limited resource while solar and wind is unlimited

Thank you

We have supported the Ohio Citizen Action group for several years and applaud their efforts in protecting the environment for the State of Ohio. With the technology available today, Duke Energy has the resources and knowledge to update coal plants in the state.

It is no longer acceptable to allow companies to operate in a manner that pollute our air and water. Companies along with individuals need to be proactive in protecting our environment for future generations.

We urge you to deny Duke Energy's request to continue with outdated coal plants in order for shareholders' to benefit.

All Ohioans should be concerned about utility customers, in my case, Duke Energy, petitioning to make customers pay for their outdated coal plants. I care about this issue because I am retired and on a fixed income and should not have to pay for Duke to continue polluting our air with outdated technology. Even though my electric supply is purchased through another electric company, this bailout would cause all of our rates to go up.

Customers, who include us, should not have to pay for Duke's antiquated old coal plants. Of course we want to reduce air pollution and save money on our electric bill; do it with cleaner energy sources, not old coal plants.

It seems unjust that we should have to pay for Duke to continue polluting our air with this outdated technology.

Duke Energy needs to be accountable to their customers—as well as their shareholders. Duke Energy should have put a cleaner energy source investment plan in place long in the past to cover this known issue.

Do not stick the customers with this misplaced strategy. We should not have to pay for the mistakes Duke Management has accumulated with time.

As a long-time customer of Duke Energy and associated energy providers, it has come to my attention that decisions are being made that will affect, negatively, the prices of gas & electric provided to me, and more importantly, the well-being of Ohio's environment.

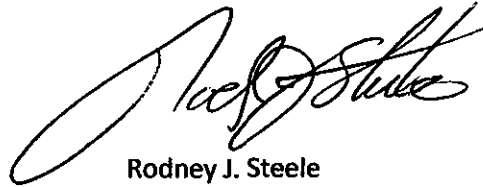

Plans have been proposed to keep outdated coal plants such as Kyger Creek in Cheshire, OH and Clifty Creek in Indiana in business, when there are viable options for green energy that Ohio has the resources, man power, and true need for. Continuing to skirt around the obvious fact that solar and wind power are the answer to our energy crisis and to the harm being done to our precious planet and home will not prove to be sustainable.

Please consider the future of our world, for yourselves and for generations that will inhabit

As a 24 year resident of Indiana and now 11 year resident of Ohio, I have seen first-hand the devastation that coal mining and electrical production can have on the land, population, wildlife, and our water sources. Long ago, it may have been the best carbon energy source to meet our nation's energy demands. That is no longer the case and with the recent opening of the 2nd largest stripmine west of the Mississippi river next to OH and our recent past of mining here in OH, I believe there is little profit incentive for companies to move to better sources of energy. This is unfortunate as many other nations have been able to break the stronghold backward ignorant practices of their past to become energy leaders in the world-both reducing the flow of money to terrorist rich areas of the world as well as gaining great national wealth for themselves.

Investing in old worn down coal based electric power plants is like putting up new telegraph lines despite the phone, cell phone, radio wavebands availability. It is time to put our investment into other sources of energy.

What is most degrading about this plan to invest in outdated, dangerous, inefficient, means to make electricity is that the people are being asked to foot the bill. While companies claim to be the leaders in search of new energy sources and making great decisions, they have stagnated their options and allowed profits to drive their decisions at the cost of us.

I do not support the perpetuation of wealthy companies to retain technology that they should have been required to maintain with pocketed profit while the rest of us suffer and are stuck with the cost of those poor decisions. Please stop our forced costly reinventing of the wheel by stopping Duke from raising our rates for their outdated coal burning steam plants.

Everybody wants clean water, clean air to breath, and to conserve our natural resources. With that said, why are we still bailing out outdated power stations? No new power stations have been built in years in Ohio and yet again we, the taxpayers and consumers, are putting a band aid on outdated power stations with case number: 14-0841-EL-SSO.

Now is the time to find new ways to produce CLEAN energy not the "we have always done it this way" attitude as in Duke Energy and the others. We need to reduce water and air pollution that outdated power stations create. Our energy bills need not go up because of incompetence.

Do I have the answers as to how this is going to happen? Of course not but everyday technology marches on. Fracking is producing natural gas at unheard of amounts. Wind turbines, solar using the sun, to name a few. Will this cost money to covert to clean energy? Of course but bailout of old power stations cost and we will have the same problem in a few years.

I am 63 years old and I care about the future, and my son's future, and so on. So I ask you: IF NOT NOW WHEN? You have the ability to change the future for the good, use it wisely.

My family and I care about toxic pollution and renewable energy. As a public utility serving the best interests of the community, raising rates to continue the operation of coal powered plants hardly meets that criteria. Coal powered plants pollute the air we breathe and deplete natural resources. Duke Energy has raised rates repeatedly. At a time when many Ohio families and elderly citizens are struggling financially, there can be no good reason to increase dividends to shareholders by placing that burden on Ohio citizens.

Please be aware that we and other citizens of this community strongly object to the PUCO holding us hostage through its rate increases and unhealthy toxic pollution practices.
