Dear PUCO:

Case # 14-084-EL-SSO

I have always believed that breathing was natural. In fact, I believe that breathing is almost mandatory. Now why would we allow something as important as our air to be polluted?

In letting outdated power plants run, we harm not only our selves but generations to come. This recklessness can only hurt humanity and it is nothing short of a travesty that it has gone this far.

And as far as the power companies go, I can reliably say, (based on my monthly power bill) that there is no excuse for a bail out for these companies.

A power company should eagerly comply in providing its customers with a cleaner, more reliable product. I only hope that you will "encourage" them to comply and help the over all greater good by stopping the deliberate pollution of our air.

As a solution I think that if we are to continue forward into the future, we must make more environmentally favorable policies.

If we spend a little now,
we can save ourselves later.

Truly yours,

Jonathan Power

Dear Duke Energy,

My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution, saving money on our electric bills, and supporting clean energy. We pay around 1,00$ per month on our gas/electric bills, and really cant afford to pay for more. We are ranked 3rd in cities across the country for air pollution, and this is unacceptable in 2014 when there is science and proven systems to supply a cleaner energy alternative.

Thank you for your time, and I hope you will pay attention to this important issue.

I am writing this letter in to urge you not to bow into any pressure from utilities (i.e. First Energy and Duke) to reward them for deliberately stalling any upgrades to their old coal-fired power plants. As a resident of Ohio for half my life, I like living in Ohio, but I also know that this is not the way a well-run state government operates, having lived in 4 other states.

I certainly want to reduce air pollution as well as save money on my electric bills, and there is no sensible reason why both cannot be accomplished with a forward-thinking energy policy in the state. (I am frankly also concerned about the possibility of a coal ash spill into the rivers in Ohio, similar to the Duke's Dan River "spill" in North Carolina).

Any sort of financial reward (think "bailout") will ultimately be paid for by the residents of Ohio, who will effectively be paying TWICE for their energy: once through their utility bills, and again through taxes or other means that the State of Ohio might skim from us to make up the revenue handed out.

It is time we put an end to welfare on a wholesale scale that the big energy companies in this country have enjoyed for far too long.

Sincerely yours.

Dear PUCO:

As a family, we are very concerned about First Energy and Duke submitting plans to you for financial bailouts for their outdated and expensive coal plants. It is wrong for First Energy and Duke to expect customers to buy the power from these expensive plants! And the bailout would cause ALL of our rates to go up no matter what energy company we choose to purchase from! Our family deeply cares about reducing toxic pollution as well as saving money; therefore, we support clean energy instead. It is imperative that Duke Energy be held accountable to their customers!

Dear PUCO,

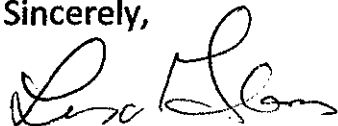

We want to reduce air pollution, save money on our electric bills and urge our utilities to provide cleaner energy sources for our electricity.

Financial bailouts for energy providers are not the answer. Forcing customers to pay for power from old coal plants is not the answer. Certainly, there is a better answer that takes into account the improvements in technology, reduces air pollution and is cost beneficial rather than prolonging the use of already obsolete equipment and plants.

We urge you to search for the answer, not put a band-aid on the old problem.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dear Public Utilities Commission of Ohio,

I am writing in regards to Duke Energy's attempts to bailout on their outdated coal plants. Please deny their requests, as this is not in the best interest of Ohio's citizens.

I care strongly about this issue because the toxic load of today's generations continues to grow and the welfare and best interest of corporations are being put before the welfare and best interests of the people. Everything we breath, eat, and inject (vaccines) in our bodies are now resulting in bodily harm - together we must work towards a conscious effort to clean up our act and stop prioritizing profits over people.

God gave us this earth to enjoy and take care of and brains to help us figure out the best ways to care for each other. Cancer, asthma, autism, inflammatory conditions, etc. etc. continue to increase because too few of us are willing to stand up and do what's right, even if that costs more or decreases profits. There is nothing wrong with making money unless it is knowingly being made at the expense of people's health and well-being of the environment.

Thank-You for your consideration of my concerns regarding this matter.

I am concerned about the issue of Duke Energy trying to make consumers pay more to operate old plants. This is an issue I care about for several reasons. First, Ohio needs to do better at taking care of its air pollution problem. Air quality is extremely important. We need to be a leader in providing cleaner energy sources and taking care of our environment. Moreover, we need to be able to reduce the cost of electric bills, not increase our rates for a company's outdated technology. Please consider the citizens of Ohio and what is best for them.

Dear Public Utilities Commission of Ohio:

It has come to my attention that there is a proposed bailout by Duke Energy that would greatly affect my family. I have two little girls and our concerns for the environment; as well as our own finances are causing me to write this letter.

I am teaching my daughters the consequences of toxic pollution and I would like to know the major companies in my area support my concerns. Additionally, with already high electric bills.....to increase ours even further is extremely worrisome.

I appreciate your time and consideration into my family's concerns. I expect an agency such as yours would be interested in how average citizens feel and react to these proposed changes.

I believe that it is time that Duke Energy needs to step up and retro fit or build new more efficient electric producing power plants or develop more grid level alternative power producing utility solutions for this south west Ohio region. We need to dramatically reduce the air pollution that generate and commit as a utility corporation to developing a policy of support for clean air production.

Duke Energy needs to follow the example of other regional power companies that have begun to develop throughout the nation.

Attention Case No. 14-0841
180 East Broad Street
Columbus, OH 43215

To Whom this may concern:

It has come to my attention that First Energy and Duke Energy have submitted plans to PUCO for financial bailouts of their own outdated infrastructure. As corporations that reap astonishingly large profits from the rates that paying customers like myself pay every month for basic necessities, they are the last entities in need of any form of financial bailout. They should be reinvesting large quantities of these profits into improvements and replacements of their aging facilities same as every other responsible corporation. They are in no need of such a bailout, and PUCO should deny their requests for such.

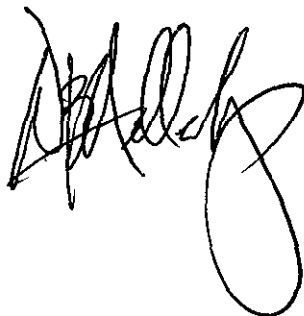

Additionally, the "freeze" on Ohio's renewable energy standards should be lifted. If we're striving for a energy grid that is less dependent on fossil fuels to generate power, then renewable energy standards should be implemented and not "frozen".

It is the Ohio Taxpayers, myself included, who pay for their utilities. Costs for any bailout would surely be passed through to the consumer from the Utilities companies. Their interest lies not in saving us money, but rather increasing their profits. We taxpayers should not be fiscally responsible for updating the aging facilities that the Utility companies have ridden into obsolescence. They need to pony up and reinvest in themselves.

A PUCO that is responsible to the Ohio Taxpayer will deny the bailout requests and reinstate Ohio's renewable energy standards. Be financially responsible to the citizens who you are commissioned to serve. Don't provide bailouts to those who don't need it.

Respectfully submitted,

William B. Hollenkamp
