PUCO

To Whom It May Concern:

As of today, I am a FirstEnergy customer who is extremely concerned about the state of our air quality in Ohio and the way in which the public is being driven to pay for home and business utilities.

Toxic pollution is currently a crisis in Ohio, and FirstEnergy is contributing to this devastating issue by not updating its technology to provide safe and clean energy.

It's time that FirstEnergy be accountable to their customers – not their shareholders – to provide clean energy sources for families in Ohio. FirstEnergy must do the right thing by not expecting Ohio citizens to pay for a bailout that will cause harm, both physically and economically, to our families.

Sincerely,

Kim Aseltine

To Whom It May Concern:

As a runner, birdwatcher, photographer and all ways outdoors type person, the quality of the air I breathe is very important to me.

I'm aware of the plans for financial bailouts of outdated and unclean coal plants that will not only continue to pollute the air I breathe, but also cost me more money in doing so. I think this is poor thinking and in no way supports the idea of clean energy.

In this day and age, we should be much better stewards of our air and in doing so have the goal of reducing carbon emissions from coal-fired plants, and be more concerned about the average person's right to clean air than big business's right to bigger profits.

Thank you for your willingness to consider my thoughts on this subject.

Dear PUCO,

I am writing as a life-long citizen of Ohio who is concerned about the continued use of coal for energy. I recently learned that First Energy has approached the Commission for a financial bailout of some of their coal plants. Please, DENY their requests. I should not have to pay for companies to continue polluting our air with old technology and I should not be made to pay for their mistakes.

I and my family want to see toxic pollution reduced, not only in Ohio, but around the world. We have to start in our own backyards and urge our utility companies to find cleaner energy sources for electricity.

Please hold First Energy accountable by denying their request.

Dear Commissioners:

I breathe. My children breathe. I want coal fired power plants to go away. This will cost money, Ok, but if I'm gonna get hit for higher costs, use my money to build modern, low/no emission plants. I do not want to subsidize a bailout of coal! I do not want to bail out shareholders. They decided to risk their money, and make a profit, on these plants. I did not.

Dear PUCO

I have recently been made aware of an attempt by First Energy and others to have the PUCO allow them to force residential electric consumers to buy power from generation plants that are outdated and inefficient for a period of three to fifteen years commencing in 2016. I oppose this on the grounds that it promotes the continued operation of plants that are beyond their useful life and continue to pollute our planet.

I support Ohio Citizen Action's clean air campaign to:

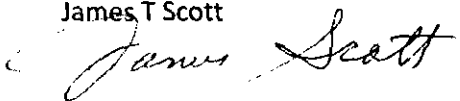

Stop the financial bailout of Ohio's outdated, least efficient coal plants, which would be funded by customers, and

Demand to end the freeze on Ohio's renewable energy and energy efficiency standards for utilities, which have saved Ohio businesses and consumers $1.03 billion since 2009.

Shame on you PUCO for even considering this scheme by First Energy et al.

Yours truly,

Gentlemen:

I and my family vote. That alone should give our voice greater weight than the power company initiative to reduce their cost at the expense of the paying public. By the way we pay our bills here and that is another reason you should listen to us rather than the agenda based lobby effort of the petitioner.

I recall a moratorium on rate increases. I recall the citizenry that grants through our elected officials, the PUCO the authority to act wants clean air, renewable energy, and efficient delivery of power to the citizens affected. Well the utilities aren't asking for that, they are asking to be bailed out of a tough spot. It's called the cost of doing business.

This is a regulated industry for a reason. Start regulating.

Very truly yours

We pay FirstEnergy for our power. I believe it is time for Ohio energy companies to make the investments in newer (renewable) energy plants. The power purchase agreement proposal made by FirstEnergy to the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio appears to ask consumers to subsidize the operation of outdated technology and processes. Instead, I believe we should be providing incentives for these companies to move away from older power-producing technologies to newer sources of energy that can be sold competitively on the open market as well as significantly reduce pollution.

Therefore, I am in strong disagreement with the proposal being made by FirstEnergy to PUCO.

My electricity use is billed and paid to First Energy. I do not believe I should be paying for them to continue polluting our air with outdated technology, which would be the case if the Commission approves the bailout of their outdated Coal Plants.

Ohio has the potential to support wind power to generate electricity; not only for corporations but also for individual farmers/homeowners/business. Encouraging this green, cleaner energy source and helping make it affordable strikes me as a far better purpose for the PU CO to further.

Solar is another clean option. Though Ohio's after gray days may not make this as viable an option, no matter the green, clean energy source selected, I

Dear Public Utility Commission of Ohio:

It is my honor as a customer of First Energy to let you know honestly how I feel about the importance of clean energy in our great state of Ohio. I have been a long time customer of First Energy and emphatically support any action on its part, and on the part of other utilities, to move into the direction of clean energy alternatives for the sake of the environment, economic growth, and new jobs in this industry.

I strongly support that First Energy move away from coal and fracturing to other cleaner energy alternatives. Case #14-1297-EL-SSO

I currently pay my energy bill to FirstEnergy. As a longtime customer, I would hope that FirstEnergy would consider both the environment and consumer's rates when making decisions. Unfortunately, I was alarmed when I learned the PUCO asked for a bailout of the oldest and dirtiest coal plants in Ohio.

This bailout challenges two of my fundamental beliefs about what an energy company's goals should be. First, financing old coal plants hurts the environment by releasing toxic pollution into the air. Breathing in smog worries me about my long term health. A company of your magnitude wouldn't want to be subject to a lawsuit regarding the health of thousands of Ohioans breathing in unclean air consequent of your outdated factories. Secondly, charging bill payers to finance this bailout serves to monopolize the PUCO, which delays the inevitable investment in efficiency and renewable energy. Essentially, this bailout is asking customers to pay for the PUCO to raise energy rates. Sounds hypocritical?

I care about the environment. I care about renewable and efficient energy. I care about having a fairly price energy bill. Should this bailout pass, you'd clearly show negligence toward those three goals of mine and the millions of customers across this state.

Public Utilities Commission of Ohio,

As a mother, I often worry about the future in which my children will grow. One of my concerns regards leaving an environment behind that is safe and unpolluted. My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution because of its compounding effects on environmental ecosystems. I would much rather observe a company taking the necessary steps to ensure that the energy it provides is clean and efficient. I understand that the effects that proper decision-making leads to a more sustainable environment in the future.

I do not wish to promote companies that force tax hikes because it has made poor choices prior to going into bankruptcy. A bailout of old, polluting technology only benefits utility shareholders and delays inevitable investment in efficiency and renewable energy. Selfishness at the cost of tax-payers should not be tolerated and reprimanded. Coal is not the long-term answer to our world's pollution problem. It is only used as the "easy way" out of a bigger issue.

To Whom It May Concern:

It's obvious to me that the proposed bailout of FirstEnergy's outdated coal plants is once again putting profits before people. This issue has long reaching consequences for us and our planet. It impacts all of us immediately by increasing our electricity bill and it impacts the longterm health of people and our planet. As a clinician in a pediatric clinic, I see far too many kids with asthma — it is criminal! All future investment should go towards clean and renewable energy. Period. I am very concerned about the 2 year freeze on renewable energy standards that was passed by the Ohio legislature, which not only allows First Energy to raise my utility bill, but also contributes to increasing pollution where I live, in Cleveland, Ohio. It is ridiculous that I have to travel an hour's distance from the city to breathe in fresh air when I am riding on my bicycle, because of the ancient coal-fired plants that are still in use. Additionally, this should be a federal issue, not controlled by individual states with different financial interests involved. I want to reduce air pollution, save money on my electric bill, and urge our utilities to provide cleaner energy sources for our electricity. After all, we all do have to breathe the air!

I HAVE RECEIVED A LETTER FROM THE UTILITY DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY IN WHICH I DWELL. I WAS TOLD TO EXPECT HIGHER ELECTRIC BILLS. WHY? I ASK MYSELF.

WELL, IT SEEMS THAT POWER COMPANIES EXPECT TO BE REIMBURSED (~~REPAID~~ WITH OUR MONEY) FOR HAVING TO CLOSE PLANTS THAT ARE NOT CONSIDERED GREEN. IN ESSENCE, MY TAX DOLLARS ARE GOING TO FORTIFY THESE POWER COMPANIES, THEN THEY MAY RAISE THEIR RATES AND I AM PAYING AGAIN!

WHOSE POCKETS ARE BEING PICKED? OURS! POWER PLANTS (DISTRIBUTORS) ONLY NEED TO STUDY - ~~GET~~ WITH OUR MONEY, FEASIBILITY OF RENEWABLE ENERGY STANDARDS. I FEEL AS IF THIS IS A CIRCLE - RAISE CO2 RATES TO STUDY REASONS TO RAISE CO2 RATES MORE.

DO FIRST ENERGY & DUKE NEED ~~FINANCIAL~~ FINANCIAL BAILOUTS TO PAY PENSIONS TO THE MANY RETIRED PERSONNEL THAT HAVE BEEN REPLACED WITH TIME/LABOR SAVING ^{THESE} DEVICES, SO THE POWER COMPANIES DON'T HAVE TO REACH INTO THE SHAREHOLDERS POCKETS TO PAY SAID PENSIONS?

THESE ~~USE~~ PRACTICES WILL ONLY DRIVE THE PUBLIC TO SEARCH TO SOURCES OF POWER THAT AREN'T CONTROLLED BY THE COMPANIES THAT ARE PASSING A RATES TO COOPERATIVES THAT PROMISE TO GET LOWER RATES AND ONLY FIND THEIR HOPES DASHED. UP IN SMOKE, LIKE THE MONEY THE PUBLIC IS LOSING

Re: Public subsidizing of coal-fired power plants and related issues

Coal is arguably the least desirable source of power in developed countries for economic, environmental, and public health reasons that are all too familiar. This is an appropriate time for Ohio to be actively reducing dependence on this resource in favor of sustainable energy production (e.g., wind) as well as alternative fossil fuels. Using public funds to pay for antiquated coal-fired plants is not only wrongheaded; it is exactly the opposite approach to that needed. In order to compete for talented workers employed by companies that will contribute to our economy and society, we need to use these funds to develop and subsidize modern energy sources rather than incentivize a FirstEnergy to continue its unsustainable business practices.

I understand the motivations of FirstEnergy – indeed, given a sufficiently permissive atmosphere, many (probably most) companies would try to get money from the public. Unfortunately, making state consumers pay a company to correct problems that are a consequence of that company's lack of corporate foresight and failure to upgrade their infrastructure is completely unacceptable. FirstEnergy faces the same challenges as other power companies; if they are unable to compete, it is their problem and the solution, including the resources, must come from within.

Coal plants operated by First Energy should be updated using funds in the First Energy 'Piggy Bank', not mine. Don't raise my electric rate to fix and maintain your facilities. Please do not support what you know to be morally and ethically wrong, creating pollution with out-dated technology and passing the cost off to the citizens of Ohio. We pay enough already for our utilities, and certainly don't need to be forced to pay more by funding a bail-out for another corporation who cares only for making huge profits, at the expense of our environment.

Dear Public Utilities Commission:

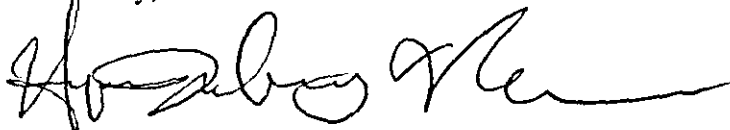

I would like to make it as clear as possible: I have zero interest in helping FirstEnergy get their outdated coal plants updated at my expense or in encouraging them to continue to pollute the air I breathe.

I would love to reduce air pollution, save money on my electric bill, and have cleaner energy sources available; FirstEnergy's bailout will not help me with any of this.

Instead, I would like to see toxic pollution in my area reduced and my energy bills drop. My spouse and my child would like to have clean air to breathe and not have to worry about going bankrupt due to obscene increases in our electric bills, and make no mistake: the bailout would cause all of our rates to go up no matter which energy company we select. My family and I should not have to pay for FirstEnergy to continue polluting our air with their outdated technology and to pollute our lives with their callous disregard for human interests.

I understand that FirstEnergy wants to value their shareholders over their customers; many businesses do. However, without the customers they don't have a reason to exist. If I want air to breathe, and enough money to enjoy my life with my 1-year-old son, I will do everything in my power to prevent this travesty from occurring. I like breathing, and my child would like an occasional toy to play with or a piece of fruit to eat. So, no bailout. We get the air and the money; the energy companies have enough.

I want to reduce air pollution, save money on my electric bill and urge our utilities to provide cleaner energy sources for our electricity.

Dear Puco,

My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution, and saving money on our electric bills by supporting clean energy instead.

Corporate Welfare is the problem with our economy.

Clean Air is our future.

I am not even from
Cleveland but I love it.

We, as humans, require
clean air to survive

This makes me like the
BROWNS less

DO THE RIGHT THING!

To whom it may Concern at ~~FirstEnergy~~ PUCO
We care about this issue
because my family and
I should not have to pay
FirstEnergy to continue polluting our air with out dated technology
we can barely afford our Utility Bills as it is.

To survive we must reduce air pollution as well!

To PUCO

I don't believe customers should have to pay First Energy for old coal plants that will continue to spew pollutants into our air. Me and my family want to see updated technology, reduced pollution and clean energy initiatives. First Energy ought to be accountable to its customers, not its shareholders.

I have a large family and this issue is important to us.

We care about toxic pollution, it will affect our children, our next generation.

Also utility bills are out of control!

Help!
