COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

PUCO comment against First Energy hearing...

Where many people are creating a carbon footprint, your company is creating a carbon trail. According to Environment Ohio, in 2012 we ranked 2nd for climate change pollution from Power Plants. I am part of the generation who has to live with your mistakes. I may not be a lawyer or a businessman or a politician, but I am an educated person who can see the harm carbon emissions can do: acid rain, particulate matter (or fly ash), or nitrous oxides (cause of smog). You may want to argue that you are keeping people in business and creating jobs (coal miners, engineers, etc.). What about the jobs you are compromising? Farmers whose crops are ruined from acid rain. Fishermen who can't fish because of the high mercury content in the water. Not only is it ridiculous to ask customers to give you more money because you have made poor investments, but you want to bailout plants that rank in the top 100 polluting coal plants in the country. The W.H. Sammis plant in Stratton which ranks 39th. You may argue that we need more research. I'll show you where to look. I'll gladly do the research myself for you. You want to create jobs? Hire me. If these bailouts should happen, do you think your customers will sit idly by and pay the increased rates? I know I won't.
