Public Utilities Commission of Ohio:

I write to you today as a concerned citizen. I have young children who deserve to grow up in a safe and secure community with a healthy and green environment. In order to achieve this, in order to have change, we must be a pro-active community that looks ahead to more efficient, renewable energy. Surely you do not think a bailout of some of the oldest and dirtiest coal plants in the state benefits future generations. Let's be honest, it benefits only utility shareholders. I challenge you to not take the easy-out in this matter but put your foot down and demand better. Better utilities, better options, better air, better environments. Make Ohio a state known for change. We are all heading in the same direction – clean and renewable energy. Let's not be the last to join in the fight to save OUR landscapes, OUR farms and OUR cities. Take this stand, push the state in the right direction. Your ancestors will thank you for it.

Thanks for your time.

Sincerely,

Courtney R. Schank
