Dear Members;

I am writing to express my opposition to the First Energy bailout. Dependence on antiquated and inefficient will not only cost the taxpayers of this state financially but more importantly adds to the toxic pollution which is gradually but surely destroying our environment. I urge you to vote against this bailout for the sake of our children and grandchildren.

Sincerely

I am definitely NOT in favor of any bailout of Ohio's outdated coal plants! Please stop the First Energy bailout! We paid too much money about 15 years ago for utilities to transition to deregulated power plants. Now we are asked to pay again. Energy companies should not be able to shift the cost of outdated coal plants to us, the consumers.

Dear Public Utilities Commission of Ohio,

Today I learned Ohio has the third worst air quality amongst the 50 states of this great nation. This fact is very alarming; therefore, we must change the way we approach energy in Ohio. My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution and improving the quality of our air, while also reducing the cost of our energy bills. I am so passionate about this issue because my husband and I have two boys who are being raised in this state and we want to be sure they are exposed to the highest quality air possible. I know that the great state of Ohio can do a much better job protecting our conservation, air quality and the future and the health of our children. First Energy provides are electricity and they will be receiving a similar letter addressing these issues.

Sincerely,

Please deny the rate increase to lock consumers into buying power from Ohio's oldest dirtiest coal plants. It is not our job to have to do the clean up that the coal plants have neglected to do. I hope you realize that carelessness on their part is unsafe as well as expensive. As a child I worried about my Dad's safety while he was in the mine and later my brother lost a friend who was buried in rock in a coal mine. The companies that own mines and plants to supply energy to us should take care of their facilities. I remember mining related deaths and how dirty this work life is. I hate watching that black smoke rolling out of smoke stacks of power plants that I pass while traveling. They need to clean up their own mess and not pass everything on to us. They should stay on top of this environmental mess. If they are rundown and outdated why are our electric companies trying to pass this responsibility on to the consumer?

Everyone in my family had respiratory problems because of the coal heat in our home; smoke and coal dust created many problems and not much has changed.

You don't want the federal government to take care of public health and safety issues and think it is Ok for individuals to pick up the responsibilities of the corporations. They get bailed out of responsibility and we get promises and no health related results. They will accept a pay increase on our part and still continue to work with these uncorrected dirty plants and still get tax breaks I suppose. I don't buy into this at all.

To Whom It May Concern,

We are customers of First Energy and are very concerned about a proposed rate increase that would be used to bailout Ohio's oldest and dirtiest coal plants. Instead these monies should be going to further our state's development of renewable energy. This offers the greatest opportunity for our communities.

To Whom It May Concern

It has come to my attention that the Davis-Besse Coal plant in Oak Harbor Ohio is in major need of improvements. I think it is unethical to ask consumers to cover the costs and lock us into providing monies for a coal plant that is polluting our air. Not only is the plant inefficient, but it is also producing toxic pollutants that are harmful to all of us. As a mother of 5 small children, I strongly consider their well being and their future when it comes to our impact on our environment. If there is a way that we can improve things, this is our moral obligation of citizens of our Earth.

I pay my bill to First Energy and I care about this issue because my family and I care about reducing toxic pollution as well as saving money on our electric bills.

It seems obvious that a bailout of old, polluting technology only benefits utility shareholders and delays inevitable investment in efficiency and renewable energy. Why support a company who produces a poor product at an atrocious price? In most cases, these companies would be shut down or demanded to improve. We should hold this same standard to the energy companies because in the end, this benefits the greater good.

Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter. I know that you have the capability to impact us all with the support and attention that you give to these very important matters.

Dear Commissioners,

It has gone on too long—it is time to stop polluting the environment and harming the health of our citizens. I am writing regarding the state of Ohio's outdated coal plants and the proposal within the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio to get permission to raise consumer rates and then use these profits to cover the cost of the outdated and inefficient coal plants. This bailout would only benefit utility shareholders and delay the inevitable investment in efficient and renewable energy.

With regard to First Energy 14-1297-EL-SSO, I am asking that you deny the rate increase that would lock consumers into buying power from Ohio's oldest coal plants.

Please take action that reduces toxic pollution and will save money on electric bills for the citizens of Ohio. Our family cares about reducing toxic pollution as well. A bailout of old plants only benefits the utility companies, like First Energy, and does not benefit tax payers or the health of our society.

Dear Commissioners,

We oppose the request from the power companies to support their dirty work with a rate increase. (Case No. 14-1297-EL-SSO)

Nature (or maybe God) has provided us with a remarkable resource—clean air. It is good for everybody and does no harm. Anyone who introduces foreign matter into the air ought to be made to stop—or at least made to pay for it. This is especially the case when the stuff is harmful, as much of the detritus from coal powered plants has been shown to be. Power can be provided more efficiently and cleanly but the longer one waits the more difficult and expensive it becomes.

It is time to stop the power companies such as ours, First Energy, to keep polluting our air and expecting us to pay them to do it. It is time to work our way back toward the clean air that nature provided.

As a resident of Ohio and customer of First Energy I am concerned about the level of pollution that is associated with the outdated coal facilities of First Energy Corporation, and their desire to pass the costs of the operation of these facilities to the consumers. I do not believe that it is fair to me to assume the costs of their outdated coal plants.

By permitting First Energy a bailout so that they can pass the costs, is not fair to the citizens of the state of Ohio, or the environment. The only benefit is economically to the energy companies.

Dear P.U.C.O.,

A bailout of old, polluting technology only benefits utility shareholders and delays inevitable investment in efficiency and renewable energy. My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution and saving money on electric bills. We live in a city which has an aging, polluting power plant.

First Energy (case number 14-1297-EL-SSO) has requested a rate increase which will lock consumers into buying power from Ohio's oldest, dirtiest coal plants.

Please deny this rate increase.

Warm regards,

Please do not implement a bailout of Ohio's coal plants. It is important to the citizens of this state that we reduce both toxic pollution and the high cost of our electric bills. If we bailout old antiquated technology the only benefits will be to the shareholders of those utilities. Dear Sirs-

I pay my electric bill to First Energy here in Akron and I don't want a bailout of the coal plants with increases to my bill. Any mistakes made by industry are always paid by the customers, with little by the electric suppliers. Poor advance planning, excessive bonuses to the highest executives, and general lax accounting to the general public often cause these bailouts. Please ask the First Energy company to find other ways to solve their self-induced problems. We are strapped by many government excesses and public utilities already. Enough is enough!

RE: 14-1297-EK-550

Dear Sirs:

My family and I care very much about reducing toxic pollution and saving money on our electric bills. A bailout of old, polluting technology only benefits the utility shareholders and delays the necessary and inevitable investment in efficiency and renewable energy. Please consider this seriously and bring our state into the 21st century. Our health and our lives depend on it.

Yours truly,

I am writing in regards to case # 14-1297-EL-SSO and the proposed rate increase. I oppose the rate increase that will result in prolonging the use of outdated, dirty coal plants. Ohio's neighbors are investing in wind technology and other clean sources of energy. It is time for Ohio to do the same.

I pay my electric bills to CEI and I care about this issue because I would like my children to live in a better world. My family and I care about reducing toxic pollution and saving money on our electric bills.

Please deny the rate increase which will lock consumers into buying power from outdated, coal plants. Make an investment in efficiency and renewable energy.
