I oppose the nature of the proposed natural gas pipelines. I know from my experience with piping water and gas that even small pin hole can supply more than 80 gallons of water that will not even slow down when valved off as there is residual in the pipe that need to be drained off. That is why all sprinkler pipes have drain pipes attached. I do not see that the gas pipes have any system to drain off for emergency depreciation. I also know that gas can travel even father under the ground than water, meaning that the gas from a leak can travel a mile before detected. Of course, even more or less depending on the path it takes. However, unlike the requirements for gas stations there is no safety vault to detect and contain the gas.

Question: Are you proposing to use military force to push your agenda forward? Until, you can supply reasonable cause for the pipe line, and reasonable safety measures, which you have not done, surly, you cannot expect local police to enforce such blatant safety violations.
