Re: Case Number 16-0253-FA-BTX

Dear Board:

As a resident of Blue Ash, Ohio, I am very concerned about Duke Energy Ohio's proposed Central Corridor Extension Gas Pipeline Project. Sending 30" high pressure industrial transmission lines through residential neighborhoods risks the safety of Blue Ash residents and other communities. The 720 pounds per square inch of pressure makes these pipelines dangerous, and the proposed route goes through residential yards, a hospital, churches, and an elementary school and very near a major mall, and many other schools. Unfortunately, Duke Energy has no experience running this type of transmission line through residential neighborhoods.

While the safety issue associated with this pipeline is my major concern, I also object to its negative effect on neighborhood property values. For many of us along its route, our homes represent our biggest investment for our future financial security.

Please vote against the project in its present form.

Sincerely,

Carol Heideman
Blue Ash, Ohio homeowner
