COMPLAINT DESCRIPTION:

Upon reviewing my electric bill, I find that the product (electric generation) is almost equal to the cost of the delivery service by DP&L at over $200.00/month for my home not including Night Lights. I looked at the various tariffs that the PUCO has approved for DP&L and broke down the costs. Besides our ridiculous lawmakers deciding raise revenue by charging consumers excise taxes and forcing electric distribution utilities to act as "big brother" to promote energy efficiency instead of allowing capitalism to work, the PUCO has approved tariffs for such things as "Stability Service Riders" which pay distributors for doing a quality job which should be a given. I want the PUCO to closely look at and fully review the true distribution costs and cut the bloat from these tariffs wherever possible. You have introduced competition into the market place for electric and natural gas generation driving down these costs, but the distribution companies remain a monopoly on the last mile delivery to customers. If the distribution costs were not so high, the PUCO would not have to approve tariffs such as "Universal Service Charges" to help low income and energy education which DP&L seems to use to advertise themselves on TV. Regards, Jeff Dolence
