Ref: Docket # CP07-208-000

Reference the attached news article taken from a recent edition of our local newspaper, which has done an outstanding job of keeping all our local residents informed and aware of the many sordid developments involving an impending corporate invasion and legalistic seizure of our local homes and property.

This represents only a very small on-going belligerent part of the tragic circumstances we have been painfully experiencing with these self-centered moneyed interests -- as so vividly demonstrated by the blatant arrogance of the instance described, wherein this ravenous interloper publicly says they don't care what either the public or our duly elected representatives may think, they are publicly proclaiming they are proceeding on the assumption that once they obtain Federal regulatory status (-with power of eminent domain), they will do whatever they want in total disregard of the rights and concerns of all others.

As you are no doubt aware, this financial colossus proposes to lay one of the largest in-ground natural gas pipelines ever constructed in North America -- traversing through numerous States -- including Indiana.

There are many continuing contrary considerations involved in this massive project, with a cascading abundance of compelling reasons why it should either not be constructed at all, or, use other less existing obstructive routes it could utilize.

As you can gather from the attached news article, this plundering entity doesn't really care whom they offend or whose opinions and concerns they totally trample upon -- including our local civil authorities, or anyone else, in their singular focused selfish pursuit of bludgeoning profits through the misguided and misapplied legalistic use of governmental prowess.

It makes me angry, ashamed, disappointed, and in stark disbelief that our citizen government -- of the people, by the people, and for the people, would knowingly and openly allow, permit, and condone such a mockery of justice.

Hopefully, maybe some of our future elections will change, alter, or totally eliminate such abominable travesties in the future.

This is to certify that the images appearing are an accurate and complete reproduction of a case file document delivered in the regular course of business.

REX avoids approval

By Carla Austin

Regional Correspondent

It looks like the Franklin County Commissioners will not have their day with Rockies Express Pipeline officials anytime soon.

Rockies Express Pipeline is a proposed 1,678-mile natural gas pipeline system from Rio Blanco County, Colorado, to Monroe County, Ohio. It runs through Franklin County.

The Franklin County Area Planning office tentatively set aside February 25 for a REX hearing. According to Larry Franzman, Franklin County Area Plan Executive Director, REX officials planned to file a special exception. In a letter to Franklin County Commissioners, read at their February 11 meeting, Franzman said REX officials do not plan to seek a special exception.

"Rockies Express is proceeding on the assumption that they will obtain a regulatory status as a utility and be exempt from the procedures required by local zoning," Franzman said in the letter.

According to Franzman, REX will seek regulatory status through the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

"They're dissing our county," Franklin County Commissioner Tom Wilson said. "They're not going to give us a chance to talk... It sounds to me like REX doesn't care what our concerns are."

Franklin County Surveyor Joe Gillespie said he does not think REX could meet Franklin County criteria for a favorable recommendation.

Franklin County Commissioner Don VonderMeulen suggested the commissioners create a list of grievances against REX and draw up a document. The commissioners said they are concerned about what damage heavy REX construction equipment can inflict on county roads.

Mel -

Up to this time, I have refused access to REX pipeline personnel for some of the final surveys mentioned on the attached -- pending our current on-going talks and negotiations with other potential legal counsel who specialize in eminent domain issues.

However, as our public prosecutor who has already actively pressed charges against this firm relating to other instances of their previously trespassing on private property, my constituent question is --

In your review of this enclosure, because this company has not yet knowingly received approved right of eminent domain, do I have to voluntarily immediately comply with their request in the prompt manner they described to avoid further legal consequences -- as they suggest, or, can I continue at this point to legally refuse compliance without fear of further known legal reprisals or other complicated entanglements?

Because of the extremely short and sensitive time frame given by REX to reply in this regard, could you please advise -- hopefully as absolutely soon as possible, and preferably in writing -- so I won't inadvertently misquote your guiding opinion, as to my current property owner's rights in matters of this particular nature.

Of course, if you should have further questions, or need additional details, please call -- 647-6019, and if I'm out, we have an answering machine that will allow me to get back with you immediately.

Thanks Mel. I deeply appreciate your prompt response and follow-up.

Ms. Rose -
This is another blatant example of the aggressive
"done deal" mentality we are getting from REX.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ENTER LAND TO SURVEY AND EXAMINE

ROCKIES EXPRESS PIPELINE LLC ("REX") has filed an application with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ("FERC") pursuant to 15 U.S.C. §§ 717f for authority under the Natural Gas Act to construct a pipeline for the purpose of transporting natural gas to service markets in the Midwest and Eastern regions of the United States. REX's application, dated April 30, 2007, is docketed at FERC as CP07-208-000.

The route of REX's proposed pipeline crosses your property described on the reverse side. In furtherance of its application and, if approved, construction of the proposed pipeline, it is necessary for REX to enter your property to perform certain surveys and examinations on it, including one or more of the following:

Civil Survey
Archeological Survey

Environmental Survey
Soundings

Drillings
Appraisal

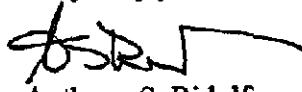

REX would like to receive your written consent to its entry onto your property in order to perform the needed surveys and examinations. In the event your property suffers any damage as a result of REX's entry onto it, REX will make restitution or reimbursement for the actual damages suffered. Also, your consent to REX's entry onto your property will not waive any rights you may have to object to the proposed route of the pipeline.

If you consent to REX entering onto your property in order to conduct its surveys and examinations, please sign and date this notice in the places indicated on the reverse side and mail it to REX no later than March 10, 2008, in the self-addressed, stamped envelope enclosed. A representative of REX will contact you to make arrangements for the surveys and examinations.

If you do not consent to REX's entry onto your property, or fail to sign and return this form by March 14, 2008, REX hereby notifies you of its intent to enter upon your property to conduct the needed survey(s) and examination(s) at a time of its choosing after March 14, 2008. In order to assure that its entry will not be impeded or obstructed, REX intends to initiate legal action to confirm its rights to conduct the needed surveys and examinations.

A copy of this Notice has been provided for your records. If you have any questions, please feel free to call me at (317) 636-5401 or Pat Sallman at REX, phone: (866) 900-8013.

Very truly yours,

Anthony S. Ridolfo
