COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

To the PUCO Commission:

Please consider in your deliberations on the AEP rate increases that this 15% increase is not 15% but in reality a whopping 52% over three years. How can AEP justify such a shocking amount when they admit that the company is doing well in the rest of the US? Also, does coal somehow cost more in southern Ohio than elsewhere?

With increases in other necessary commodities, how can an individual or family absorb these without going under or giving up such necessities as medicine and food.

This sounds like just another huge corporation out to make an enormous profit -- like the oil companies.

Thank you

Dona Reaser
