Local Exchange and Other Tier 1)

Ohio Administrative Code.)

ENTRY

The attorney examiner finds:

- (1) In accordance with its Entry of September 1, 2006, and its Opinion and Order of December 20, 2006, the Commission granted AT&T Ohio's two motions for a protective order with respect to proprietary information that was filed as part of AT&T Ohio's application in this proceeding.
- (2) In accordance with the attorney examiner's Entries of February 25, 2008, and July 22, 2009, the previously issued protective orders were twice extended for a period of 18 months.
- (3) Pursuant to its motion of December 14, 2010, AT&T Ohio seeks an extension of the protective orders for an additional 18-month time frame. In support of its request, AT&T Ohio explains that the relevant information represents confidential business information consisting of competitive local exchange carrier (CLEC) line counts and the count of certain CLEC and wireless carrier presence indicators. AT&T Ohio asserts that the designated information must continue to be protected due to the fact that it constitutes a trade secret pursuant to Section 1333.61(D), Revised Code. AT&T Ohio contends that protection of trade secret information from public disclosure is consistent with the purposes of Title 49, Revised Code, inasmuch as the Commission and its staff have access to the information and, as in this case, the parties may have access under an appropriate protective agreement.

While recognizing that the data in question is no longer the most current information regarding the presence of CLEC and wireless providers and CLEC market share in the AT&T Ohio exchanges,

AT&T submits that the information is not considered by those entities to be transitory.

- (4) On December 16, 2010, AT&T Ohio filed letters from some of the telephone companies whose data is the subject of the protective orders for which an extension is being sought. The letters reflect the individual companies desire to continue to maintain the confidential status of their company-specific data inasmuch as it continues to be a trade secret.
- (5) Based on the arguments presented, the attorney examiner determines that, consistent with Rule 4901-1-24, Ohio Administrative Code, the previously issued protective orders should be extended for an additional 18-month period of time due to the continued proprietary nature of the relevant information. After this period of time, AT&T Ohio should request that the applicable CLECs and commercial mobile radio service providers perform an evaluation in order to determine whether their company-specific data continues to require protective treatment.

It is, therefore,

ORDERED, That the protective orders shall be extended in accordance with Finding (5). It is, further,

ORDERED, That a copy of this entry be served upon all parties and interested persons of record.
