

FILE

200

Lowery, Judy

From: Kathleen Duncan <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 2:53 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

11-346-CL-SSO

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kathleen Duncan
Akron, Ohio

PUCO

RECEIVED-DOCKETING DIV
2012 JUL 19 PM 3:51

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

This is to certify that the images appearing are an accurate and complete reproduction of a case file document delivered in the regular course of business.
Technician Date Processed 7/19/12

Lowery, Judy

From: Toby Reese <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:16 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Toby Reese
Rittman, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: cheryl bowman <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:37 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

cheryl bowman
mt.airy, North Carolina

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ashlee Carpenter <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:40 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ashlee Carpenter
Marietta, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jo Dunlop <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:53 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jo Dunlop
West Liberty, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: gene mankey <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:52 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

gene mankey
cadiz, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Junfang Leng <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:05 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Junfang Leng
Dublin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Leonard EASTER <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:13 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Leonard EASTER
Cana, Virginia

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: James Wilson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:17 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

James Wilson
Gambier, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Paul Kazee <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:16 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Paul Kazee
Mt Sterling, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Denise Yocum <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:22 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Denise Yocum
Zanesville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Anthea Cassidy <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:24 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

I cannot afford higher bills. I already work 2 jobs just to maintain the basics. CEO's, Presidents, Directors, etc and companies need to realize that people (their customers) are still struggling. It should not be a choice between power, and food.

Anthea Cassidy
dublin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dan Segraves <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:26 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dan Segraves
COLUMBUS, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Benjamin Campbell <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:29 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Benjamin Campbell
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Marilyn Myers <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:33 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Marilyn Myers
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kathryn Sykes <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kathryn Sykes
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ivanovich Mironovsky <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:49 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ivanovich Mironovsky
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Cherilyn Barrett <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:51 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Cherilyn Barrett
Westerville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Wm. Bowen <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:54 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Wm. Bowen
ohio, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dakota Miller <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:03 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dakota Miller
Dayton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Lorraine Brown <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:27 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Lorraine Brown
Medway, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dan Cumberledge <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 5:49 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Because its the right thing to do.

Dan Cumberledge
Salem, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sherman Easter <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:02 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sherman Easter
Cana, Virginia

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: woodrow trimble <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:44 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

woodrow trimble
kensington, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dana Stone <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:45 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dana Stone
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kimberley Romoser <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:49 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kimberley Romoser
Bellville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: jen dygutowicz <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:04 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

jen dygutowicz
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Bonnie A. Yeager <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 6:52 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Bonnie A. Yeager
Lancaster, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dan Starner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:18 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dan Starner
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Stephanie Wagner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:23 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Stephanie Wagner
Struthers, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Stefani Vancs <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:51 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Stefani Vancs
Lorain, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Brenda Nelson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:58 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Brenda Nelson
Nelsonville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tina Roosa <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 7:59 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tina Roosa
Lorain, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: charles brooks <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:06 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

charles brooks
athens, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tina Legue <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:08 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tina Legue

,

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: leroy lynch <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:14 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

leroy lynch
canton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: aaron avera <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:16 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

aaron avera
pachuta, Mississippi

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Beverland Hall <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:29 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Beverland Hall
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Terry Smith <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:29 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Terry Smith
Ft Recovery, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: William Koltek <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:30 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

William Koltek
Louisville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Angelique Vierhout <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:47 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Angelique Vierhout
Newark, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: robert mears <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 8:50 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

robert mears
Cana, Virginia

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Chris C. <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:03 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Chris C.
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: brian bond <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:19 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

these guys rape us each and every month, this is their equipment, we should not have to pay for repair or upkeep when we pay for the service.

brian bond
little hocking, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Megan Theis <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:35 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Megan Theis
Middletown, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: angela brown <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 9:37 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

angela brown
COLUMBUS, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Terry Glidden <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:49 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Terry Glidden
Caldwell, United States Minor Outlying Islands

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: LOU STAMMER <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 11:15 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

LOU STAMMER
COLUMBUS, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Teryn Wolfe <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 10:41 AM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Teryn Wolfe
Guysville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Glenn Herrick <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 1:06 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Glenn Herrick
Salt Lake City, Utah

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: christina henn <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 2:18 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

christina henn
Tipp City, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Heidi Thomas <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 3:07 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Heidi Thomas
North Olmsted, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Nancy Gurich-Hurt <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:15 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Nancy Gurich-Hurt
Wooster, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Amy banta <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:36 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Amy banta
columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Michael Barr <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:36 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Michael Barr
Athens, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dustin Steiner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:36 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dustin Steiner
Orrville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Laura Tuck <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:36 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Laura Tuck
Athens, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Amy belcher <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Amy belcher
Whitehall, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: David Merris <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

David Merris
Fairborn, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Eric Ruppe <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Eric Ruppe
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Heather Roscow <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Heather Roscow
Gahanna, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Alison Stone <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Alison Stone
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Asher Zawodniak <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Asher Zawodniak
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tim Hinzman <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tim Hinzman
Parkersburg, West Virginia

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Marion Dean <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

we can't go to AEP to recoup the food we lost or the time and trouble for being displaced for so many days. We should be getting a credit for having our power out for so long now our rates higher. What a way to kick people while their down AEP!!

Marion Dean
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kim maiberger <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kim maiberger
Aberdeen, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: carly Thornell <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

carly Thornell
Fort Jennings, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Nancye Van Brunt <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:37 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Nancye Van Brunt
Amelia, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: P Aaron <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

P Aaron
Dayton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dan Bauman <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dan Bauman
columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kevin Pozza <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kevin Pozza
Willoughby, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kaylyn Talkington <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kaylyn Talkington
Norwalk, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Bree Holley <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Bree Holley
Dublin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Amanda Russell <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Amanda Russell
Coolville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ron Miller <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ron Miller
Maineville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kayli Davis <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kayli Davis
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Josh Schinagle <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Josh Schinagle
Toledo, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ben Trube <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:38 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ben Trube
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Danielle Balliet <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Danielle Balliet
Bucyrus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: daniel kessler <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

daniel kessler
cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Stephanie Barnard <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Stephanie Barnard
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jen Moore <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jen Moore
Eastlake, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Adam Niswonger <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Adam Niswonger
Blacklick, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: JONATHAN GATTEN <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

JONATHAN GATTEN
columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Scott Weaver <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Scott Weaver
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: wava shellhorn <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

wava shellhorn
shreve, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Samantha Hope <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Samantha Hope
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jason Kinlen <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jason Kinlen
Pataskala, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sarah Hamm <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sarah Hamm
Mount Vernon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kyle called <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kyle called
Zanesville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sherri Eley <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sherri Eley
Lima, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: jimmy swearingen <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:39 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

jimmy swearingen
Canton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Denise Frabott <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Denise Frabott
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Amanda Avery <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Amanda Avery
Orwell, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tim McKenna <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tim McKenna
Athens, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tiffany Noe <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tiffany Noe
Sterling, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Brendan Mathew <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Brendan Mathew
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Keesha Hiser <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Keesha Hiser
Tiffin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Justin Jenney <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Justin Jenney
Gahanna, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Marina Higgins <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Marina Higgins
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ian Merriman <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ian Merriman
Pickerington, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Maggie Duda <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Maggie Duda
Lewis Center, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Miranda Zurcher <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:40 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Miranda Zurcher
Norwalk, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Nicholas Drone <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Nicholas Drone
Maineville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jennifer Ondr <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jennifer Ondr
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Paul Kreinbrink <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Paul Kreinbrink
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jimmy Mccoy <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jimmy Mccoy
Gallipolis, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Rick Richardson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Rick Richardson
Bethel, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Marcus Clay <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Marcus Clay
Ironton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ashley Campbell <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ashley Campbell
Millfield, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jacqueline Garner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jacqueline Garner
Dover, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Susan Dora <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Susan Dora
Westerville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Chasitie Waits <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Chasitie Waits
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kristin Ratliff <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

We are a family of 5. My husband works and goes to school full time. I stay at home with our children. There is no way we will be able to afford any new raised rates. Why should we suffer so the rich can get richer???

Kristin Ratliff
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Karen Fike <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Karen Fike
Powell, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Roger Arnett <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Roger Arnett
Wheelersburg, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: LaToya Chapman <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

LaToya Chapman
Hamilton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Chassity Happeny <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Chassity Happeny
Lancaster, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ed Moser <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ed Moser
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Beverly Zen <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Beverly Zen
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: steve todd <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:41 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

steve todd
west chester, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dean M. Hindenlang <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dean M. Hindenlang
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: John Smit <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

John Smit
Mason, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Bayli Turner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Bayli Turner
Philo, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Lisa Hunter <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Lisa Hunter
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: aki carter <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

aki carter
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Steve Hatch <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Steve Hatch
SEVEN HILLS, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jason Lawson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jason Lawson
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ximing Li <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ximing Li
Athens, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: angela podnar <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

angela podnar
clinton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Vince Fonte <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Vince Fonte
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Abby Rheyne <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Abby Rheyne
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tiffany Lawrence <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tiffany Lawrence
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: erin crum <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

erin crum
Westerville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sur Lewis <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sur Lewis
Hillsboro, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kathy Crisler <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kathy Crisler
Logan, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ashley Hohenberger <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ashley Hohenberger
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sara Rhodes <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sara Rhodes
Massillon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Deborah Sandoval <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Deborah Sandoval
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: teresa keys <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

teresa keys
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Nicole Edwards <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Nicole Edwards
Westerville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Joanne & Joseph Kepes <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Joanne & Joseph Kepes
Kettering, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tim Rohling <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tim Rohling
Batavia, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Ashley Bensonhaver <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Ashley Bensonhaver
Circleville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Karen Hughes <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Karen Hughes
dayton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Dewayne Fletcher <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Dewayne Fletcher
Lima, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: TILETHA FRANKLIN <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

TILETHA FRANKLIN
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Linda Marcin <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Linda Marcin
Akron, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Karly Keirse <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Karly Keirse
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Linda Nowakowski <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Linda Nowakowski
Dayton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Judy Painter <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Judy Painter
South Webster, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: amber Mckinney <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:42 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

amber Mckinney
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Scott Genberg <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Scott Genberg
Cleveland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Joree Jacobs <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Joree Jacobs
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kim Ashkettle <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kim Ashkettle
Chesterland, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Daniel Scarberry <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Daniel Scarberry
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Russell Higgins <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Russell Higgins
Howard, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Suz Robrooks <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Suz Robrooks
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Christine Bruger <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Christine Bruger
Mayfield Hieghts, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kari Curtis <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kari Curtis
Catawba, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Talisha Fulton <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Talisha Fulton
Newark, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Chip Wilmeth <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Chip Wilmeth
Logan, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Amy Kegley <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

My electric bill is already high enough and with th

Amy Kegley
Vincent, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: David Donofrio <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 1:56 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

David Donofrio
Dublin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: David Scott <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:05 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

David Scott
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Michelle Coneglio <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:11 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Michelle Coneglio
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Herbert Bresler <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:16 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

I'd be ok with paying extra for buried lines so we don't have to go through these outages repeatedly, but not to simply maintain the same old outdated system - that's AEP's problem. We've already paid a price for their lack of updated infrastructure.

Herbert Bresler
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Leigh Hunker <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:32 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Leigh Hunker
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Cornelius McGrady III <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:46 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Cornelius McGrady III
Reynoldsburg, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Crystal Obiukwu <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 2:57 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Crystal Obiukwu
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kathleen Doherty <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:06 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kathleen Doherty
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jennifer Schmidt <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:22 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jennifer Schmidt
Cincinnati, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kara Kaminski <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:25 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kara Kaminski
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Tamera Good <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:28 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Tamera Good
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Susan Hayes <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:32 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Susan Hayes
Mount Vernon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Mike Giamalva <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 3:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Mike Giamalva
Ocean Springs, Mississippi

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: pat henderson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 4:09 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Worst, least responsive so-called customer service. No concern for senior citizens or those with infirmities or health problems - just wait in line til they decide to get around to your house.

pat henderson
mt vernon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Minesh Patel <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 4:23 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Minesh Patel
Carteret, New Jersey

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: lorena fuller <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 5:31 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

lorena fuller
kent, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kenneth Myers <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 6:29 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kenneth Myers
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Robert Brickner <mail@change.org>
Sent: Thursday, July 12, 2012 6:30 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Robert Brickner
Fairfield, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Cody Douglas <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Cody Douglas
Mount Gilead, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Cassandra Facinelli <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Cassandra Facinelli
Smithville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Terri Russell <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Terri Russell
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: TANA COLBERT <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

TANA COLBERT
COLUMBUS, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Brooke Robinson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Brooke Robinson
Mt Vernon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Sam Rosen <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Sam Rosen
New Albany, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Abe Ambroza <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Abe Ambroza
PANDORA, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Cheyenne MacLean <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Cheyenne MacLean
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: tosha heidel <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

tosha heidel
Findlay, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Kenneth Patterson <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Kenneth Patterson
Dublin, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Adam Saldivar <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Adam Saldivar
Bloomville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jennifer Hurlow <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jennifer Hurlow
Mt Vernon, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Nathan McGraw <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Nathan McGraw
Reynoldsburg, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: josh heck <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

josh heck
Circleville, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Justin Jenney <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Justin Jenney
, United States

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Theresa Hill <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:43 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Theresa Hill
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Mike Bigam <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:44 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Customers should not be responsible for management incompetence.

Mike Bigam
Columbus, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Rodney Fleming <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:44 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Rodney Fleming
Sherwood, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

Lowery, Judy

From: Jeff Kinsland <mail@change.org>
Sent: Tuesday, July 17, 2012 4:44 PM
To: Snitchler, Todd
Subject: Spam: Don't make customers pay for your mistakes!

AEP executives, PUCO members, and Ohio Statehouse Officials,

I just signed the petition at Change.org/AEP, and I wanted to tell you directly how I feel.

* AEP executives Michael Morris, Nicholas Atkins, and Terri Flora: Don't submit the application requesting the PUCO to let you pass on "cleanup costs" of the recent storm to customers after making record profits of $1.9 billion last year. This would be greedy, deceptive and unfair - and it would make me want to do business with a different power company that I can trust and respect.

* PUCO Chairman and Commissioners: If AEP Ohio does apply, reject their application outright. Their failure to plan for sever weather is not their customers' fault or responsibility. It is, however, your responsibility to "assure Ohioans adequate, safe, and reliable public utility services at a fair price."

* Ohio Elected Officials: Use your oversight powers - the ones you were elected to use on behalf of constituents - to ensure the PUCO acts in the best interests of Ohioans and rejects the application. I'm watching to see what happens, and I'll remember in November.

The "cleanup costs" passed on to customers from 2004, 2008, and 2012 combined are less than 15% of AEP Ohio's profits for 2011 alone. Only bad business planning and practices could explain asking customers to bear the cleanup costs.

I don't expect anyone to change the weather, but I do expect you to prepare for it and respond accordingly - just like my family and I do when we know a storm is coming. AEP customers and your constituents won't stand for corporate greed disguised as disaster cleanup, and we won't let our Public Utilities Commission help you, and we won't forget about it if our elected officials fail to act in our interests.

Do the right thing - make AEP pay to clean up its own mess.

Jeff Kinsland
Norton, Ohio

Note: this email was sent as part of a petition started on Change.org, viewable at

<http://www.change.org/petitions/aep-don-t-make-customers-pay-for-your-mistakes>. To respond, click here

