Two guards killed in Missouri jail

HUNTSVILLE, Mo. — A man and woman rang the night bell at the county jail and opened fire when they were let in Thursday, killing two guards in a botched attempt to spring an inmate.

After gunning down the guards, one of whom was a city councilman who had pushed for beefed-up security at the Randolph County Jail, the killers searched for the key to the inmate's cell but couldn't find it and fled.

The suspects, Michael Tisius, 19, and Tracy Bullington, 27, were captured unarmed about nine hours later after a police officer spotted them walking along a Kansas highway 130 miles away. They did not resist.

Tisius and Bullington were charged with murder. Bullington was also charged with trying to help a prisoner escape.

Guards Leon Egley, 33, a Huntsville city councilman and jail supervisor, and Jason Acton, 36, a jail guard on the job for two months, were both shot repeatedly with a pistol.
