PUCO

Dear Mr. Fosson,

Thank you for your comments related to Everpower's Buckeye Wind I and II projects. Several of the comments stand out and are worth responding to.

The Board does not approve any projects with fury. Please visit our website (www.opsb.ohio.gov) where you can find the statutory timelines which we have to adhere to. As far as "egregious setbacks" are concerned, the Board does not establish turbine setbacks. Rather, the Ohio legislature does. The first round of setback distances was established in Senate Bill 51. Setbacks were later increased in subsequent legislation.

The Ohio Power Siting Board very much takes note of public concerns, which is reflected in each and every case docket. The Board bases its decision on the full case record.

I hope this was responsive.

Sincerely,

Klaus Lambeck, Chief
 Facilities, Siting, & Environmental Analysis Division

COMMENTS: Can you tell me if Obama is running this department or whether the OPSB is run by the state of Ohio? I'm having a hard time distinguishing who runs it since the fury at which you are approving projects and throwing your fellow Ohioan's under the bus seems indicative of how Obama is running the government. I would personally like to thank you for the egregious setbacks you established here in Ohio for wind turbines. It really shows that you do not stand with the people of Ohio to ensure property values are protected and that health concerns are alleviated. If there is some magical donation coffer I can contribute to that will start to erode your perfect record of 16-0 of voting against the public please let me know. I mean there has to be a magical donation coffer somewhere for how else does all the people express their concerns at your hearings and you inevitably rule against them every single time. I have my checkbook and my pen so please let me know that donation link that all the turbine developers are contributing to. In closing, I would like to thank you for consistently doing nothing for the people trapped inside your approved industrial wind turbine zones.

Un-Sincerely,

Rich Fosson-Sold Out Resident by the OPSB in Champaign County
