To Whom It May Concern:

I want to be heard regarding Duke Energy's attempt to raise their prices in order to fund their efforts to eliminate their old coal plants. It doesn't seem fair to have the consumer pay when we already have to pay so much.

I don't like the fact that Duke continues to pollute our air because of their outdated technology. There has to be other resources other than the consumer to pay for these upgrades.

We need Duke Energy to be accountable to us the consumers rather just the bottom line which answers to the shareholders. I own stock and I understand the advantages back to us but we cannot continue to pay higher and higher utilities prices.

Thank you.

Public Utilities Commission of Ohio,

I'm writting to you to let you know why I care about this issue. I'm a 25 year old single mother of two. As a single mother I struggle monthly to make my bills on time. I also worry about pollution and how it can and will affect my children. This bail out would not only raise my rates, which I can't afford, but why should I have to pay for the poor decisions of Duke energy? Why should I have to pay for them to continue polluting our air with out of date technology? Duke Energy should be held accountable for their decisions, not hard working people such as myself and their customers. I hope you take the time to consider these things and listen to the people who this will ultimately affect. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

This bailout would cause all of our rates to go up no matter what energy company we buy from and it is hard enough to keep up with the rate now. How about instead of following everyone else and raising cost of living and rates you go against the flow and keep it (rates) the same.

I am writing to share that I am opposed to what is equivalent to a bailout of Duke's coal plant. It is important that we encourage clean energy alternatives. The future is darker and dirtier the more we rely on coal. Further bailing out Duke will increase our costs and energy and decrease money we could be spending in our local economy. Cleaner air should certainly be a main concern for all utilities companies. It seems like we've been fighting for that for a long time now. So it is disheartening to learn that Duke Energy is still supporting outdated technology and raising the consumer's rates in order to do so. Wow! In regards to Case No. 14-0841-EL-SSO,

There are many issues with coal that are only recently coming to life, most notably the huge output of pollution from this resource. The environment is a fragile subject in our world with so many view points and theories on its delicate state. Regardless, we need to preserve it to sustain our own lives. But with the harmful side effects of coal coming to light, it's not worth the energy we can pull from it. Instead, we should be focused on clean energy to fuel us. We have the means to do it (and it is a fruitful business as energy companies most certainly can profit from it). Other parts of the country, such as Washington state, have utilized cleaner energy and they have been doing just as well as states relying on fossil fuels and coal.

Not only are there huge environmental aspects to weigh, there is the cost to the individuals paying the bills. Even with the economy in its state, people will always struggle to pay their bills. This affects everyone. In this day and age, we all need electricity. And it is a well-known fact that those who cannot afford to pay their bills get their electricity shut off. This is a constant struggle, even with how the rates are as they are now. Increasing these rates will affect more people and less people would be able to pay for electricity (and there is no way to express just how necessary electricity is for all of us).

Duke's proposal will hurt not only the environment but everyday people as well. Everyone pays for this deal in the end.

Sincerely, Olivia Kmitta

To Whom It May Concern,

It takes a special brand of ignorance to stand with your feet close enough to a roaring blaze that it singes your toes and still have the temerity to say it's not hot. This is the same ignorance exhibited by politicians and lobbyists who not only refuse to acknowledge the need for sustainable energy and the observable damage done by carbon emissions, but then have the audacity to both stand in the way of progress and attempt to feed their narrow worldview to the public in whose best interests they supposedly act.

Renewable energy is an imperative, not an option, and it is imperative that those who suppose to serve the citizens of Ohio approach this issue with an unobstructed and—perhaps most importantly—logical viewpoint.

We must stop pretending that the fire that we have created through 200 years of industrial progress is not at a burning point that threatens to consume us all.

We must be industrious in our own revolution as those who helped to shape this country. We must think with our conscience and not

To PUCO:

Change is good. We grow and hopefully learn; however, no one seems to have learned that coal is harmful and that the world needs renewable energy. We need to focus on healing this planet, not killing it. Waste needs to be limited; Therefore, keeping old forms of energy that hurts our environment just doesn't bode well for those of us who want healthy, full lives.

Please do not support a financial bailout of Duke Energy's aging dirty power plants. Supporting these facilities is completely short-sited. Supporting them with public money is completely unfair.

My family of six cares deeply about the future of the planet. With overwhelming evidence that burning fossil fuels is leading to potentially de-stabilizing climate change. Investing in coal at this point is backwards. Please consider pressuring our utility providers to focus new investment on renewable sources of energy like solar and wind.

Dear Responsible Party:

I do not believe that Duke Energy should receive a bailout for making poor investment decisions. The bailout would cause all of our rates to increase no matter what energy company we buy from. Duke Energy needs to be held accountable to their customers – not their shareholders.

Sincerely,

Juvenal Mojarro

Dear Responsible Humans:

I love having clean air. The fact that Duke is petitioning to keep outdated coal plants open and allow for continued air polluting is irresponsible. A responsible human society should be moving forward using clean energy and maintaining an environmentally conscious attitude. This means discontinuing the use of outdated energy methods. Please reconsider your decisions on behalf of animals everywhere.

Sincerely,

PUCO-

I want to reduce air pollution &
save money on my energy bill. Puc has taken corporate greed to an unprecedented level! It is an outrage that you're asking consumers to absorb the costs of your inadequate technology!

As a member of the community, a husband and father, I am completely in favor of our city using clean energy. I do not support Duke Energy or any of its affiliates using antiquated, pollution causing energy methods, especially with third party money/bailout.

Thank you,

I care about this issue because my family is using "green" products like Metaleuca products that cause less pollution to the planet and are better for the environment. My family and I should not have to pay for Duke Energy to continue polluting our air with this outdated technology while urging its customers to use less energy and even cut back on electricity for air conditioning during peak hot summer weather.

I want to reduce air pollution, save money on my electric bill and urge our utilities to provide cleaner energy sources for our electricity.

I care about reducing toxic pollution and saving money on my electric bills by supporting clean energy instead.

This bailout would cause all of our rates to go up, no matter what energy company we buy from.

I should not have to pay Duke to continue polluting our air with outdated technology.

We need Duke Energy to be held accountable to their customers - not their share holders
