Case No. 14-0841-EL-SSO

October 23, 2014

To Whom it May Concern,

PUCO

After learning about First Energy and Duke Energy's intentions to have their customers continue to pay for power from their expensive and outdated coal plants, we feel the need to let our voice be heard on the matter. The freeze on Ohio's renewable energy standards must be ended to not only allow us to save money, but more importantly, to force these companies to change and adapt with the current push for clean energy. We will gladly pay a little more for our energy if some of this cost goes into research and development of new clean methods, and can guarantee new methods in the future, but to ask us to pay more for continued outdated service is a crime to us and the environment and needs to be stopped.

Sincerely,

Marcus and Erica Gefert
