Dear PUCO members,

My girlfriend and I care greatly about protecting our environment. Supporting FirstEnergy's request to have a purchase power agreement from PUCO is effectively supporting old, dirty coal-based energy plants. Please deny this request and focus Ohio's legislative priorities towards energy solutions that us and our future generations can be proud of.

Thank you for your consideration.

RE: 14-1297-EL-SSO

Dear Sirs or Madams:

Please deny the rate increase to lock consumers into buying power from Ohio's oldest, dirtiest coal plants. My family and I care both about reducing toxic pollution as well as saving money on our electric bills. We believe that the only way to encourage these companies to make changes, both in the sources of energy they use as well as the pricing structure they use, is to not ensure continued consumer support by supporting rate increases and locking the public into buying those services.

We want to encourage investment in new technology and renewable energy. This will not happen if we continue to bailout outdated and inefficient technologies.

Thank you for your attention,

Dear Governor Kasich;

I am writing today to let you know how much I care about the issue of reducing toxic pollution. Understanding that there are many decisions to be made for our community and government about saving money and balancing budgets appropriately, this is not one of the areas where we should be cutting corners. As a single mother of 2 girls, it is very important to me that the environment is a safe and clean place. By using and buying power from old and dirty coal plants, this does not seem to be the efficient way to go. I would support issues of renewable energy in addition to saving money on our monthly electric bills, not watching them continue to climb. Please address the Ohio Citizen Action for their efforts in this important cause for not only your current constituents, but the future as well.

Gentlemen;

As a retiree, I am much concerned with the never ending threat of rising utility costs. I'll go so far as to play my "on a fixed income" card to argue for more economical/cost effective production of electrical power. Having said that, I ask that you use the power of the PUCO to deny any attempt by First Energy to increase rates. I'm not a fan of those old dirty coal-fired plants and would be happy to see them closed and newer renewable energy using plants replace them.

My wife and I would like to see a cleaner environment for our grandkids too. We'd also like to be able to stay in our single family home and not have our meager income eaten up by utility bills.

To the PU CO —

I am old enough to remember PU CO as a sometimes advocate of ordinary citizens at the mercy of deals between elected officials and people we never saw.

But that was another governor.

You were chosen for reasons I do not want to examine closely, because I am sick of how commonplace foxes have become in running the various hen houses citizens rely on to protect their interests.

And it's not even sensible to get angry, or ask if you have no shame — because I'll never know. What I do know is that there is only one way to interpret raising the rates and consigning Ohio's citizens to the filthy products of old, polluting facilities. Only money that serves other interests — not ours — could convince you to so betray us — to put us even further behind in the inevitable arc toward same and efficient renewable energy.

Your grandchildren will not be rich enough to avoid the consequences of that delay.

My wife and I recently relocated back to Ohio after spending 8 years in North Carolina. We wanted to get back to our roots, family, and the great state of Ohio. Imagine how I felt when I learned about how a potential rate increase will lock us hard working consumers into buying power from Ohio's oldest and dirtiest coal plants! In the year 2015 even the thought of bailing out companies that provide old, polluting technology, that will only benefit its utility shareholders, is appalling! It's not even about us saving money; it's about doing the right and honorable thing, like investing in efficient and renewable energy sources. Re: First Energy 14-1297-EL-SSO

Dear Public Utilities Commission,

I'm writing to you today to ask you to say no to FirstEnergy's request for the PUCO to authorize a rate increase that would lock Ohio residents into buying power from the oldest and dirtiest coal plants.

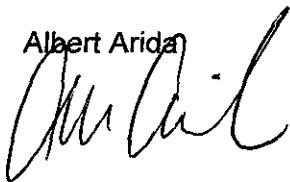

Why should customers be forced to pay for FirstEnergy's mistakes? FirstEnergy made a series of bad business decisions that have hurt shareholders, customers, taxpayers, and the environment.

I've seen estimates that this bailout will cost northern Ohio consumers $3 billion dollars after we have already paid $7 billion to FirstEnergy to transition to a deregulated electricity generation market. Now FirstEnergy is asking to have its affiliate-owned generation be re-regulated because some of its generation is no longer competitive?

This is bad for Ohio consumers. The bailout only benefits utility shareholders and delays investment in efficiency and renewable energy. The PUCO should protect Ohio's citizens and say no to this bailout.

Sincerely,

Albert Arida

Dear PUCO members-

Please do not give the energy plants a bailout and allow them to raise their rates. They are an environmental disaster. We need to be a leader in the area of dismantling old inefficient power plants. Please make me proud I live in Ohio.

Thanks for your smart decision on this topic and NOT giving the bailout to First Energy.

Dear PUCO members,

Thank you for denying Duke Energy's request for a bailout as well as AEP's original request for the Kyger creek and Clifty Creek coal plant bailouts.

For the sake of consumers and the health of the planet, please also deny FirstEnergy's request for a bailout, case number 14-1297-EL-SSO. A bailout of old, polluting technology such as coal only benefits utility shareholders. As a consumer, I am outraged at the prospect of a rate increase that would lock me into buying power from Ohio's oldest, dirtiest coal plants. The bailout of archaic and polluting technology only benefits utility shareholders and stifles the technological progression of Ohio. Forcing the energy plants involved with FirstEnergy case 14-1297-EL-SSO to be competitive, fosters forced innovation similar to that seen in booming economic cities such as San Francisco. More jobs can be created ~~forwards~~ towards green + renewable technology.

We are writing to ask that you deny any appeals by Duke Energy regarding their request for a rate increase in order to keep running their coal plants. Duke Energy's request has already been turned down by you of the PUCO and to give in to their wishes will allow them to continue polluting the environment and to ransack Ohio consumers' wallets to the benefit of Duke's shareholders and the detriment of Ohio citizens. I am a long-time resident of our state, and I am writing to express my concern about case number 14-1297-EL-SSO pertaining to the possible bailout of First Energy's old, polluting technology.
