COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

Duke Energy is proposing a natural gas pipeline project that, if built, will impact my city of Blue Ash, a northern suburb of Cincinnati. Several residents and officials have written to you asking that it NOT be constructed; several hundred residents have attended meetings on the topic, as well. Please note: we DO NOT want this pipeline built. Imagine your response if Blue Ash officials told Columbus residents that they were going to have an unwanted and potentially dangerous pipeline installed adjacent to their homes, schools, parks, and shopping area. It's good for you; you should have it. Even if you don't want it, those of us 90 miles away will decide for you. Still don't want it? Deal with it. We feel frustrated, angered, and helpless that we have no say in what is built in our own community, that officials who don't know us, who live in a different city will decide for us. We don't like that and we don't want that. I hope you will consider this letter and know that literally thousands of residents feel the same. We want control over what is built in our community, and we do not want the Duke Energy pipeline. Sincerely,
