reasons. I have lived in the Pleasant Ridge area for over 25 years and I feel that for the first time in all those years we are seeing a real neighborhood recovery. Young people moving in as well as businesses. It will be a long and disruptive operation that can virtually stop and destroy what is being started. . The second is the small possibility , as we have seen in other communities in this country, of large and destructive explosions that can happen. This area is an historic and densely populated Cincinnati neighborhood, full of VERY middle class families.
