COMMENT DESCRIPTION:

I am writing in opposition of the Duke Central Corridor Pipeline project that plans to run a "transmission" pipeline through a highly populated area of Hamilton County. Here are my main points: 1. There is no demand increase in Cincinnati. There are no new factories and very little residential development. 2. The orange pipeline route was chosen to pass by more businesses, but this does not minimize the people that will be next to the pipeline compared to residential properties. So I don't see why this a viable argument for choosing this route. 3. Duke Energy has not provided their master plan so it is hard to determine their real motivation for adding this pipeline. 4. I don't want to see a barren wasteland created through the heart of a city that is struggling to rebuild itself. There are better ways to transmit and distribute the natural gas being produced in northern Ohio without building a transmission pipeline through the center of Cincinnati.
