RE: Letter of Notification
Carrollton-Sunnyside Transmission Line Rebuild Project Update
Filed as Adjustment to Carrollton-Sunnyside 138-kV Transmission Line
Case No. 18-1857-EL-BLN

Dear Neighbor,

You are receiving this letter because our records indicate you own property or live near a proposed transmission line project. We announced and filed the Carrollton-Sunnyside 138-kV Transmission Line Rebuild Project, Case No. 17-1318-EL-BLN, with the Ohio Power Siting Board (OPSB) in summer of 2017. The OPSB approved the project in fall of 2017. We wanted to let you know about proposed route adjustments to the originally filed route and subsequent regulatory filing.

The approved project involves rebuilding about 20 miles of transmission line offset of the existing Carrollton-Sunnyside Transmission Line in Carroll and Stark counties. We are proposing minor adjustments to the approved route and are filing a new Letter of Notification with the OPSB to reflect the requested changes. Approximately 8.4 miles of the route will remain unchanged or will be adjusted less than 5 feet. About 6 miles of the approved route will now be rebuilt along the existing centerline. Minor adjustments will be made to the remainder of the route.

We have filed the updated route with the OPSB as the Adjustment to Carrollton-Sunnyside 138-kV Transmission Line, Case No. 18-1857-EL-BLN. Please see Page 3 of this document for key regulatory information associated with this project.

This project is expected to improve electric service reliability for customers and support economic development. Construction is underway on the unchanged portions of the route.

You're encouraged to comment on this regulatory update by:

Why slowing economies could prod U.S., China to reach deal

By Paul Wiseman
and Joe McDonald
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON The Trump administration and China are facing growing pressure to blink in their six-month stare-down over trade because of jittery markets and portents of economic weakness.

The import taxes the two sides have imposed on hundreds of billions of each other's goods — and the threat of more to come — have heightened anxiety on each side of the Pacific. The longer their trade war lasts, the longer companies and consumers will feel the pain of higher-priced imports and exports.

Their conflict is occurring against the backdrop of a slowdown in China and an expected U.S. slump that a prolonged trade war could worsen — a fear that's weighing on financial markets. Yet those very pressures, analysts say, give the two countries a stronger incentive to make peace.

"The U.S. and China now have a strong shared interest in striking a deal in order to halt the downward spiral in business and investor confidence, which have taken a beating in both their economies," said Eswar Prasad, professor of trade policy at Cornell University.

The economic threats, agreed Wang Yong, an international relations specialist at Peking University, "might be conducive to negotiations" by nudging Beijing toward market-oriented changes long sought by the United States.

Still, it will hardly be easy to bridge the complex

differences between the world's top two economies. They range from President Donald Trump's insistence that China buy more U.S. products to widespread assertions that Beijing steals trade secrets from foreign companies operating in China.

Negotiations between the two nations are expected to resume next week. Gao Feng, a spokesman for China's Commerce Ministry, said last week that the two sides have "made specific arrangements for face-to-face meetings" and are talking by phone. Gao offered no details, and the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative declined to confirm the talks.

The world is watching anxiously. China and the United States, the two largest economies, are the "main engines of the world," noted Song Lifang, an economist at Renmin University in Beijing. That makes their dispute "a matter not only for the two countries but for the world," he added.

The dispute is "a major factor" in a slowdown in global growth, Song said, and a settlement would "help in arresting the decline of the economies of the two countries and of the world."

Trump has long complained about America's gaping trade deficit with China: The gap between what Americans sold and what they bought from China in 2017 amounted to $336 billion and likely will be higher in 2018. But the dispute goes far deeper than lopsided exports and imports. It's fundamentally a high-stakes conflict over the economy of the future.

The U.S. accuses China of deploying predatory tactics in a drive to surpass America's technological supremacy. A report in March by the U.S. Trade Representative accused China of hacking into U.S. companies' computer networks to steal secrets and coercing American companies to hand over technology as the price of admission to the Chinese market.

To try to compel China to reform its ways, Washington has imposed tariffs on $250 billion in Chinese imports; Beijing has counterpunched by taxing $110 billion in U.S. goods. Trump had been set to raise the tariffs on most of the Chinese goods Jan. 1. But he and President Xi Jinping agreed to a 90-day cease-fire to try to resolve their differences.

Since then, the case for peace has strengthened as economic risks in the U.S. and China have grown and financial markets have reeled. For 2018, the Dow Jones Industrial Average — America's highest-profile stock market benchmark — fell nearly 6 percent, its worst performance since 2008. China's Shanghai Composite Index sank nearly 25 percent.

On top of concerns about collateral damage from the U.S.-China trade war, investors in the U.S. markets are worrying about rising interest rates and a wobbly U.S. real estate market. Fears are growing that the second-longest economic expansion in U.S. history could slide to a halt next year or in 2020. Cutting a deal with Beijing could help at least reduce the threat.

China's economy has been decelerating since the government pulled back on bank lending a year ago to try to curb a run-up in debt. The International Monetary Fund estimates that China's economy grew about 6.6 percent in 2018, down from 6.9 percent in 2017. But heavy government spending masked weakness in private-sector activity. In December, factory activity shrank for the first time in more than two years.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Tesla cuts prices

DETROIT Shares of electric car and solar-panel maker Tesla tumbled Wednesday morning after the company cut vehicle prices by $2,000 and announced fourth-quarter sales figures that fell short of Wall Street estimates.

The company said in a statement before the markets opened that it delivered over 245,000 electric cars and SUVs last year, nearly as many as all previous years combined.

But it also said it would cut prices of its three models by $2,000 to help customers handle the gradual phase-out of federal electric vehicle tax credits. On Jan. 1 the federal credit for Tesla buyers dropped from $7,500 to $3,750. It will gradually be phased out this year.

The company's deliveries for the full year matched Wall Street estimates, but its figures for the fourth quarter fell short. Tesla said it delivered 90,700 vehicles from October through December. Analysts polled by data provider FactSet expected 92,000. Tesla said fourth-quarter deliveries were 8 percent higher than its previous quarterly peak in the third quarter of 2018.

iPhone sales slump

SAN FRANCISCO Apple acknowledged that demand for iPhones is waning, fulfilling the worst fears of investors concerned that the company's most-profitable product has lost some of its luster.

The reckoning came in the form of a warning that Apple CEO Tim Cook delivered to the company's shareholders in a letter released after the stock market closed Wednesday.

Cook said Apple's revenue for the quarter including the crucial holiday shopping season will fall well below Apple's earlier projections and those of analysts, whose estimates sway the stock market.

Apple now expects revenue of $84 billion for the quarter spanning from October through December. Analysts polled by FactSet had expected Apple's revenue to be about 9 percent higher — $91.3 billion.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED MAJOR UTILITY FACILITY

AEP Ohio and AEP Ohio Transmission Co. Inc. announced and filed the Carrollton-Sunnyside Transmission Line Rebuild project, Case No. 17-1318-EL-BLN, with the Ohio Power Siting Board (OPSB) in summer of 2017. The OPSB approved the project in fall of 2017.

The approved project involves rebuilding about 20 miles of transmission line offset of the existing Carrollton-Sunnyside Transmission Line in Carroll and Stark counties. The utility is proposing minor adjustments to the approved route and is filing a Letter of Notification with the OPSB.

Approximately 8.4 miles of the route will remain unchanged or will be adjusted less than 5 feet. About 6 miles of the approved route will now be rebuilt along the existing centerline. Minor adjustments will be made to the remainder of the route.

AEP Ohio Transco filed the updated route with the OPSB as the Adjustment to Carrollton-Sunnyside 138-kilovolt (kV) Transmission Line, Case No. 18-1857-EL-BLN. The Letter of Notification to construct, operate and maintain this facility is pending before the OPSB. The project is expected to improve electric service reliability for customers and support economic development. Construction is underway on the unchanged portions of the route.

The OPSB will accept motions to intervene in the Letter of Notification up to 10 days following the publication date of this notice. The requirements to intervene are available in Rule 4906-2-12 of the Ohio Administrative Code. Please address motions to Ohio Power Siting Board, 180 E. Broad St., Columbus, Ohio, 43215-3793 and cite Case No. 18-1857-EL-BLN.

The accompanying map shows the project area. Please use this map only as a general guide due to its reduced scale and limited detail. Copies of the actual Letter of Notification, including specific details about the location and construction, are available for public inspection at the following locations:
