* Jim Hall is the former chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), and is a leading expert on crisis management and government relations, and transportation safety and security, having served government and private clients for more than five decades. President Bill Clinton appointed him to the National Transportation Safety Board in 1993, and to serve as its Chairman in 1994. He led the Board through January 2001. During his NTSB chairmanship, Mr. Hall worked tirelessly to improve safety in all modes of transportation in the U.S. and abroad. He visited more than 30 nations as Chairman, and oversaw a period of unprecedented activity as the NTSB investigated numerous major aviation, rail, pipeline and maritime accidents in the U.S. Among the major investigations the NTSB conducted while Mr. Hall was Chairman was the Olympic Pipeline accident in Bellingham, Washington in 1999. Mr. Hall graduated from the University of Tennessee in 1967 with a baccalaureate of legal letters degree and has an honorary doctorate degree in public service from George Washington University for his outstanding leadership and commitment to the public. He served as a commissioned officer in the U.S. Army from 1967 to 1973, receiving the Bronze Star for Meritorious Service in Vietnam in 1969.
