I am not against progress and the need to explore our energy options, however, this project being presented is just plain irresponsible. Lightsource bp has a reputation across the globe for corruption and operating outside of the law. The attorneys involved, former Ohio Public Utility employees, seem to be working under the radar and using unassuming loopholes to push a corporate agenda. Are there backroom favors being traded amongst current and former members of the commission. It appears to be questionable. This project belongs in an industrial area, not residential, and you know as well as everyone else that this is not an agriculture endeavor. The citizens of this area will make their displeasure known to our elected officials when re-election time comes. If this is allowed to invade and infest our homes.....it will never be forgotten.
