"Consideration of energy ban makes us a laughing stock It appears the local Luddites are out in force and infiltrating our county commission. I would expect a ban on solar and wind farms in a place like East Podunk, West Virginia, not a county that is home to major corporations. It is a ticket making Hancock County, Ohio, a laughing stock. The opposition to renewable energy sources has to be a result of misinformation, ignorance, or both. I wonder about the source of this opposition. As was said to the man who wanted to install screen doors on submarines: "What were you thinking?" Do we want to proudly display the flag of ignorance? This proposal is too embarrassing to even merit consideration. It seems that the only entities that have anything to gain from a ban on alternative energy are fossil fuel energy companies such as Marathon. I have to wonder what their role is in this mass hysterical idiocy." - Bruce Workman Findlay
