Just recently I notice there are so many people in favor of the Border Basin Solar Farm in Cass Township. In The Courier, Border Basin suggests submitting favorable comments. Many are doing so, however, most are Findlay city residents that will not be directly affected by this project in any way. They do not live in Cass Township and their property values will not decrease. They will not have solar panels, up to 15 feet tall, surrounding their homes or in their backyards. Years ago Cass Township residents voted in zoning to keep the land agricultural. Now outsiders have come in and are attempting to change the rules. There is a place for solar panels but it is not on prime farm land. I urge members of the OPSB to consider the residents of Cass Township and disapprove the Border Basin Solar Farm.
