Enter your question or comment	I find it utterly sickening that you are attempting to place solar panels on perfectly good farmland. You are robbing my generation. By driving up the price of farmland you will be gutting family farms. These family farms have been passed through multiple generations and you will be responsible for the halt to that. It is heartbreaking that you have no remorse. You are ruining the farmland, robbing us of our future, our kids future, and our grandkids future of farming. Through the generations we have persevered through recessions and droughts, just for you to ruin the land with solar farms. When there are no more farmers left, it will be your fault. We cannot compete with the prices you are driving up.
