The quantity of power that's expected to be produced is incredible. I feel that it will benefit Madison County in terms of resilience and reliability. The energy generated by the project will stay local. Contrary to misunderstandings circulating, the power produced by solar energy systems is fed into the grid and then freely distributed to anyone and everyone along that line. Typically, the electrons stay as close to the point of generation as possible to service nearby demand. Therefore, it stands to reason that we'll have increase energy security in our area, which I strongly feel is very important.
