Solar projects are vital for our mutual sustained future, and for the future of our children. If we don't help the planet recover from our fossil fuel abuses, it won't matter if we have enough food or farms. We need both sustainable energy and sustainable farming. Plus, Ohio's energy grid, while not maybe "fragile," isn't that far away from it and needs strengthened with energy resources that are "home-grown" and not reliant upon other states or countries. My wife and I are a full supporters of solar energy projects in out county, while also hoping they do construct them with an awareness of the land, including current and future land fertility.
